How to use social media 11

1. Introduction

1.1. De Montfort University Kazakhstan (DMUK) recognises the numerous benefits and opportunities that social media presents. We actively use social media to engage with Students and the general public, celebrate success, communicate research, and enhance the University's online profile. Therefore, DMUK also actively encourages University Students to make effective and appropriate use of social media channels (including Instagram, Facebook, LinkedIn, 2Gis, Youtube,TikTok, etc.) and to engage in conversations with the DMUK community.

1.2. Despite the opportunities presented by social media, there are risks. Social media allows individuals to communicate either in their own name or anonymously to a potentially huge audience, and sometimes its informality can encourage us to be less cautious than we would be with other, more traditional methods of communication and interaction. Inappropriate use of social media can damage the University's reputation, potentially misrepresenting DMUK's views and negatively impacting Staff, Students, and our partner institutions.

1.3. This policy is for Students and provides information on the appropriate use of social media when connected, or linked in some way, to their status as students of the University, or when directly or indirectly referencing the University in any way.

1.4 This policy works alongside the following separate institutional policies and regulations, including but not limited to:

- General Regulations and Procedures Affecting Students,
- Policy on Dignity and Respect
- Use of Information Systems Policy
- Data Protection
- Unacceptable Behaviour Policy

1.4. The principles of freedom of expression and academic freedom apply to the use of social media; however, the University requires responsible and legal use.

2. Scope

2.1. For the purpose of this policy, the term 'Social Media' is used to describe virtual channels dedicated to live-streamed or scheduled uploads, community-based input, interactions, content sharing and collaboration through the building of virtual networks and communities. Websites and applications dedicated to forums, microblogging, social networking, social bookmarking, social curation and wikis are among the different types of social media. It also includes any other means of communicating on the internet where members of the public (including Staff or Students) may reasonably access the communication.

2.2. They currently include, but are not limited to, Facebook (and Messenger), Instagram, WhatsApp, 2Gis, Threads, Snapchat, TikTok, Twitter, LinkedIn, Reddit, YouTube, Flickr, Pinterest, Clubhouse, WeChat, Weibo, Doujin and Discord.

2.3. This policy applies to all social media communications made both on public and private forums, by Students (even when not explicitly identifying themselves as a DMUK student), including those communications which directly or indirectly reference the University. This policy applies to social media uploaded anywhere, including off-campus and on personal devices, whether to an individual, group or the world. While posts added to public forums can be seen by any member of the public from the date of publication, Students are reminded that posts added to private forums (including private messages between two parties) can also be shared publicly by others. Students may be subjected to disciplinary action if they fail to meet the guidelines in the Student Misconduct and Disciplinary Policy and all relevant policies referred to in 1.4, as reflected in the communications they have posted, even when they believe the forum is private. There have been some high-profile cases in recent years in which students across the country have been disciplined after offensive comments made on private messaging services such as WhatsApp were captured and subsequently shared. With this in mind, Students should remember that the University can take action if behaviour failing to meet policy guidelines is identified, whether publicly or privately.

3. Students' responsibilities

3.1. Students are encouraged to be mindful of how their identity, statements or views appear online and are reminded that current and future employers, and industry contacts may view social media profiles when recruiting to gain information about a candidate's character, personality or employability. Students should therefore bear in mind that any content they publish online may affect future opportunities.

3.2. It is the responsibility of all students to read and act in accordance with the principles of these guidelines, and regularly check the University's Student regulations and policies for any minor updates to documents.

3.3. In addition, it is recommended that Students read and act in accordance with the rules and guidelines set out by individual social media companies and providers.

3.4. Students should check the terms and conditions of a social media account and/or website before uploading material to it; by posting material to social media accounts and/or websites, ownership rights and control of the content may be released. For this reason, it is essential to exercise caution in sharing all information, primarily where the information, expressly or by implication or innuendo, identifies a third party. Students should seek permission to share information that could identify any third party before doing so.

3.5. Students must be aware of the potential impact and permanence of anything posted online. Even if your settings are set to private, other people may share information you have shared with them or there may be information out there from before your settings were changed. Therefore, Students should avoid posting anything:

- They do not wish to be in the public domain
- Which contravenes sections 4, 5 and 6 of this policy

3.6. Any digital material posted online could reach a wider audience than was expected or intended. Once digital content has been created and shared, there is limited control over its permanence and audience.

3.7. Students should note that they have the right of erasure under the data protection legislation, and that they can request that social media companies remove content concerning themselves. It should be noted that there are circumstances where the social media company can refuse to remove content, for example where they might be used as evidence in legal proceedings.

3.8. Students should note that any personal data uploaded onto social media about themselves is usually regarded as being put into the public domain, and therefore has significantly less protection from the data protection legislation.

3.9. It is prohibited to:
- use accounts on messaging platforms or social networks, websites (including anonymous ones), Reels, videos, photos, or any other content that incorporates the name or other distinctive features of the University or its partners for the purpose of bullying, stalking, insulting, or humiliating individuals, or damaging the reputation of the University or its partners; participating in such activities is also prohibited, even if the individual is not the owner of the account or website;

- mention the personal data of students (e.g., name, year of study) or staff members in the online space without the consent of the data subject.

4. Behaviour and conduct on social media

4.1. Students are personally responsible for what they communicate on or through social media, and they must adhere to the standards of behaviour set out in this policy and any related policies, such as Policy on Dignity and Respect and the General Regulations and Procedures Affecting Students.

4.2. Students wishing to raise a complaint or report a crime or an incident should follow established university guidance rather than reporting via social media, e.g., by contacting the Student Development Department team or by contacting the Police. Where necessary, Students should contact the University and/or the Police as soon as possible, saving any evidence, e.g screenshots of social media. Students are advised to bear in mind that sharing details and evidence of a complaint on social media may limit the likelihood of action being taken against any offenders and may lead to civil action against the author if the complaint is found to be false.

4.3. Use of social media must not infringe on the rights or privacy of other Students or Staff, and Students must not make disparaging or defamatory comments or judgments about other Students, Staff or third parties.

4.4. We recommend that permission to share third-party material from the owners of the material, in line with copyright laws, including all images, photography, text and videos, be sought and recorded before uploading said material to, or sharing via, social media. Furthermore, where permission is obtained, we recommend that such materials be appropriately credited.

4.5. The following non-exhaustive list includes material considered to be of an unacceptable nature that should never be posted:

- Confidential information (which may include research not yet in the public domain, information about fellow Students or Staff or personal matters, non-public or not yet approved documents or information).
- Personal information about another individual, including contact information, without their express permission.

- Posts made using another person's name or identity without their consent
- Submission of other students' social media account details for surveys, forms and open letters
- Inappropriate material, including but not limited to images, that is, or may be perceived to be threatening, harassing, discriminatory, illegal, obscene, indecent, defamatory, or hostile towards any individual, group or entity.
- Records, recordings and/or photographs made without the consent of one or more parties concerned and released without a clear public interest case.
- Recordings or any content from University owned DMU Replay material or interactive learning platforms including but not exclusively, virtual Learning environment (VLE) and MS Teams, and online assessments.
- Any other post or material that constitutes, or may constitute, a criminal offence.
- Material to prepare to engage in or engage in academic offences.
- Material taken from assessments or exam scripts.
- Any academic work completed by the student in part or full.
- Anything which may bring the University into disrepute or compromise the safety or reputation of colleagues, former colleagues, Students, Staff and those connected with the University.

4.6 Careful consideration should be given before sharing details of potential or complaints or legal proceedings, as this can impact the outcome of proceedings and/or the viability of evidence used.

4.7 Students should be mindful that statements on social media that cause harm to an individual, including to their reputation, or that interfere with an ongoing disciplinary/legal process, may create a potential civil claim against the individual making the statement. Furthermore, this may extend to the sharing of statements made by others.

4.8 Students should also be aware that communications on social media are also subject to legislation, which aims to prevent interference with legal proceedings regardless of intent to do so.

4.9 Students and Student groups, e.g., DSU societies, must take particular care not to state or imply that their views are those of DMUK when using social media, nor use the University logo at any time.

4.10 Students should note that extracting data from social media sites for use in projects or research as part of their studies could constitute processing personal data as defined in the Data Protection Regulations .

5. Cyber bullying

5.1 The University will not accept any form of bullying or harassment by or of members of the University, Students or stakeholders or visitors, e.g. De Montfort Student Union.

5.2. The following non-exhaustive list of examples illustrate the types of behaviour, displayed through social media, which the University considers to be forms of cyber bullying:

- Maliciously, negligently or recklessly spreading rumours, lies or gossip
- Intimidating or aggressive behaviour, as perceived by those viewing the social media content.
- Offensive or threatening comments or content, as perceived by those viewing the social media content.
- Posting comments/photos etc. deliberately, negligently or recklessly mocking an individual with the potential to harass or humiliate them, as perceived by those viewing the social media.
- Repeatedly posting comments on social media about an individual or group in an unwanted way, and not complying to requests to desist.
- Accessing any third party's social media either directly or through personal contacts and using this to post comments about an individual.
- Replicating student's account, assuming a student's name or identity or otherwise posting on a student's behalf without their consent

5.3 Cyber bullying may also take place via other means of electronic communication such as email, text, instant message, video, audio or images – edited or otherwise.

5.4 Students should be aware that some cases of the above may constitute criminal acts under the Republic of Kazakshtan law.

6. Student use of official University accounts

6.1 Some students may have the opportunity to post on the official DMUK social media accounts, working closely with the university social media team to develop peer-to-peer content. This could include taking over DMUK Instagram Stories, creating video content for DMUK Instagram Reels, TikTok, and YouTube Shorts, or being part of official DMU live streams. Students may be contacted directly to support on the channels, may be asked as part of their role as an ambassador or may contact the team directly to seek out opportunities. All students gaining access to the official DMUK accounts will be provide with clear advice and guidance and is expected to behave in accordance with the Student Misconduct and Disciplinary Policy

6.2 Misuse of official University accounts may lead to suspension and, following a disciplinary committee, may lead to expulsion; Students will not be eligible for readmission to the University at any time in the future.

7. Breach of the policy

7.1. If a Student is found to have acted in breach of this policy, this may lead to consideration of disciplinary action being taken against them in accordance with Student Misconduct and Disciplinary Policy.

7.2. Any individual suspected of committing a breach of this policy will be required to cooperate with any investigation in accordance with the disciplinary procedure. Non-cooperation may result in further disciplinary action in accordance with the Student Misconduct and Disciplinary Policy.

Failure to comply with such a request may result in further disciplinary action. Furthermore, internet or social media-based evidence constituting preparation to engage in an academic offence or engagement in an academic offence will be considered under both this policy and the General Regulations and Procedures Affecting Students.

7.4. Any breach of this policy must be reported in line with DMUK's Student Complaints Procedure in the first instance. Breaches must be brought to the attention of the DMUK Student Development team where appropriate by email at sds@dmuk.edu.kz

How to use social media

How to use social media: Tips and hints on staying safe and managing your reputation

We all recognise the enormous benefits and opportunities that social media presents and we actively encourage our Students to use social media to communicate and keep in touch with latest news and research in their area.

Despite the opportunities, there are risks. Social media allows individuals to communicate with a potentially large audience, and sometimes its informality can encourage us to be less cautious than we would ordinarily be.

These tips are to help you when you are considering posting on social media. They will help you manage your professional reputation and ensure you follow University guidelines and law.

- Remember, everything you post online is public. Once it's out there, you lose control of how others might interact with it. Posting anything online (even on closed profiles or private messaging services, like WhatsApp, for example) has the potential to become public, even without your knowledge or consent.

- Think before you post. It is essential to realise that even the strictest privacy settings have limitations. Once something is online, it can be copied and redistributed. Would you be happy for your family, your lecturer, or your future employer to see it? If not, then it's probably not a good idea to post it. There have been several high-profile cases in which students across the country have been disciplined after offensive comments made on private messaging services, like WhatsApp, were captured and subsequently shared.

- Consider how the content of your messages may appear to others. Offensive materials, including text, images and video, have the potential to cause serious upset and severely damage your professional and personal reputation. Consider how others may perceive your content. How could a potential employer view the content? Employers are increasingly checking the digital footprint of potential Staff. This means looking at old tweets, posts, and forum comments. Will sharing the content result in you falling short of the expected standards at the University and the law? If so, the University could take disciplinary action. Don't forget, it can be hard to take something back once it has been shared, copied, or redistributed.

- Check your privacy settings. Protect your personal information and that of others from misuse. Think about who can see your address, telephone number, date of birth and email address. And, definitely don't share your bank details online. Also remember that while you may be sharing the content privately (on your own private profile or in a private forum) others can share that content publicly if it is available.

- Use Secure Passwords. Remember to use a secure password and current advice for this is to use a pass phrase of three or more words that you can picture in your head. Never re- use passwords across different websites. Where possible use second factor authentication methods, which may include sites sending an SMS or an authenticator app on your phone.

- Make sure you familiarise yourself with expectations regarding professionalism and confidentiality on your course, especially if your course is accredited by a professional body. If you breach the code of conduct of a professional body, it is very likely to affect your ability to study, potentially subject you to fitness to practise proceedings, and affect your future career.

- Be aware of sharing third-party materials. Do you need permission to share the materials or should you, as a matter of courtesy, contact the party? Make sure you check before posting as infringement of rules could break copyright and/or intellectual property laws.

- Do not post solutions to assignments on the internet or social media. If you upload your own answers to coursework or phase test questions then these may be used by others in their own assignments.

- Do not use the internet or social media to incite or facilitate cheating in assessments. To do so is a breach of this Policy and a disciplinary offence.

- Finally, question everything you read online. Not everything you read might be completely accurate. Who wrote it? Where did it come from? Do you know the source of any imagery or other materials included? Writing and distributing inaccurate statements about people and organisations can be unlawful and lead to legal action.
